

Curiosity on the Naukluft Plateau

Curiosity is currently located on the Naukluft Plateau just north of the Bagnold Dune field. Its position was captured by HiRISE on 25 March 2016. The rover is within sandstone outcrops informally named the “Stimson Formation.” There are no obvious rover tracks here, indicating that this bedrock contains little dust that otherwise could be disturbed by the rover wheels as has been seen earlier in Curiosity’s traverse.