

A Triple Crater

ESP_049987_1450

The raised rims and ejecta indicate that these are impact craters rather than collapse or volcanic landforms. The pattern made by the ejecta and the craters suggest this was a highly oblique (low angle to the surface) impact, probably coming from the west (up). There may have been three major pieces flying in close formation to make this triple crater.

