

The Hills in Ganges Chasma

ESP_054609_1720

Ganges Chasma is in the northeast portion of Valles Marineris, and opens into outflow channels that flowed to the north. Scattered hills on the canyon floor may be remnants of chaos terrain that formed from collapse of the canyon. Some of the bedrock has diverse colors as shown in the enhanced-color cutout. (268 km above the surface and less than 1 km across.)
