

GREETINGS FROM MARS!

Flow Margin and Ejecta from a Large Crater to the West

uahirise.org/ESP_013308_1810

“Ejecta” refers to material that settles back down after an impact, and it sometimes can form a “blanket” around a crater, with material that is more resistant to erosion than the surrounding terrain.