

Exploring Antoniadi Crater

Antoniadi Crater was identified, even prior to the MRO mission, as a likely ancient lake (now dry) that was supplied by both surface water and ground water. Note also how “flat” the terrain appears, an important factor for any potential future landing spot.