

Cratered Cones in Grojtá Valles

This scene shows a portion of Grojtá Valles, a system of channels carved into the equatorial lava plains of Mars. The floor here includes numerous streamlined landforms. The nature of the flow through the valleys (volcanic or fluvial) is debated, but at this locality the flow unit hosts a series of small cratered cones.