

A Defrosting Mess

Just like on the Earth, the frost layer that accumulates over the winter will disappear as summer approaches and Mars heats up. However, most of this frost is not made of water ice and snow—on Mars, most of the frost/ice is made of carbon dioxide (also known as “dry ice”).