

Looking for Changes in Colorful Aureum Chaos

Although Mars has a thin atmosphere, the wind is nevertheless strong enough to move some sand dunes and ripples (collectively termed “bedforms”). Such changes have been recorded by HiRISE. Our team is continuing to monitor areas with bedforms to see if they have moved.