

Curiosity Ready to Drill for Gold at the Kimberley

The mudstones at Yellowknife Bay, where Curiosity recently visited, had been exposed recently—to a geologist—less than 100 million years ago. The MSL team thought that this was due to erosion of overlying layers by the wind, and that even younger exposure ages should be possible closer to the scarp.