

Blockfall on the North Polar Layered Deposits

Comparing this HiRISE image with an observation from the previous Martian year reveals an example of one of these processes: blockfalls. The slope is steep and fractured here, and a large chunk of dusty ice has tumbled down the slope and broken apart.