

Once in a Blue Dune

Just to the south of a group of barchan dunes here in Lyot Crater is one large dune with a more complex structure. This particular dune, appearing like turquoise blue in enhanced color, is made of finer material and/or has a different composition than the surroundings. (306 km above the surface and less than 1 km across.)

uahirise.org/ESP_053894_2295

