

The Hills in Juventae Chasma

This image captures some of the geologic diversity of Mars. There are hills of ancient terrains on the floor of Juventae Chasma, surrounded by younger sediments, including dark sand sheets and dunes that are likely active today. (NASA/JPL/University of Arizona. Alt: 255 km, less than 1 km across.)

uahirise.org/ESP_058566_1760

