

Frosted Gullies

Gullies on Mars form during the winter, fluidized by carbon dioxide frost, so we monitor these sites for activity throughout the year. This mid-winter scene is almost completely frosted over the pole-facing slope within the shadow. (NASA/JPL/UArizona)

uahirise.org/ESP_062894_1435

