

LINES OF PITS IN PROTONILUS MENSAE

This observation shows a lobe-shaped debris apron emanating from a massif in the Protonilus Mensae region of Mars. These aprons are composed of nearly pure water ice with a layer of debris on the surface protecting the ice from sublimation.

HIRISE

uahirise.org/ESP_070735_2240