

SCULPTED SURFACES ON THE SLOPES OF ARSIA MONS

This upstanding rim of a degraded impact crater is a prime feature of this image, along with bright tones are that erosion resistant outcrops, likely from dust that has accumulated and been sculpted by the wind.