

DARK CRATERS

This image caught something interesting. Most of the surface is smooth regolith peppered with small craters. However, some of the craters are notably dark compared with everything else in the image. The dark craters have small ripples and are dark blue in enhanced color, characteristics usually associated with active sand kicking off its dust cover.