

STRANGE MESAS IN NOACHIS TERRA

This image shows several mesa-like features in the Noachis Terra region of Mars. A mesa is a steep-sided, flat-topped mountain or hill. While the larger features in this image are elevated areas of land surrounded by cliffs, the smaller “mesas” seem to be saucer-shaped in that the interiors of the mesas are at a lower elevation than the surrounding cliffs.

LPL

HIRISE

uahirise.org/ESP_086811_1615