

ANCIENT BEDROCK IN THE SOUTHERN HIGHLANDS

This image of an ancient rocky hill in the Southern Highlands proved to be surprisingly colorful due to diverse rock compositions. In the color cutout, the bluish and greenish rocks are probably unaltered rocks rich in pyroxenes and olivine, whereas the warmer tones may be from minerals altered by water.

LPL

HIRISE

uahirise.org/ESP_093841_1480