

Formations in Context (Or, What is It?)

Some HiRISE images show strange-looking formations. On the floor of the trough is some grooved material that we typically see in middle latitude regions where there has been glacial flow. These depressions with concentric troughs exist elsewhere on Mars, and their origins remain a matter of debate.

uahirise.org/ESP_053734_1515

