

A Valley Near the Northern Lowlands

The goal of this observation is to determine the source of the ridge within a possible moraine that is also present in another HiRISE image (ESP_049226_2175). A moraine is a mass of rocks and sediment carried down and deposited by a glacier. If the structure is a moraine, we should expect to find two sources of debris converging in the valley.

uahirise.org/ESP_050004_2170

