

WHEN DID THE LIGHT-TONED LAYERS FORM?

Determining when the light-toned layered deposits formed is important for understanding the geologic history of Valles Marineris, especially because these deposits are hydrated and most likely formed in the presence of liquid water.