

ICY FLOW IN PROTONILUS MENSÆ

This scene is of a tongue of material in Protonilus Mensae as it separates from a high-standing area that shows evidence of layering. The marbling present here and at the top of the curving extension of material suggest a possible icy origin, as many other Martian mountain glaciers show similar smaller lines and grooves.

LPL

HIRISE

uahirise.org/ESP_087996_2245