

RIDGES IN NORTHERN TERRA SABAEA

One of the most distinguishing features of this part of Terra Sabaea are thin, dark-toned ridges that may have formed as cracks that were later filled with minerals brought in by groundwater. Another possibility is that these formed as magma or mud erupted onto the surface from deeper underground.

LPL

HIRISE

uahirise.org/ESP_088602_2090