

A Tale of Two Flows

ESP_043609_2230

This image was taken in one of the regions on Mars well-known for its viscous flow features, which are massive flowing deposits believed to be composed of a mixture of ice and dust similar to glaciers on Earth.