

Dunes of the Southern Highlands

ESP_049371_1380

HIRISE
HIGH RESOLUTION IMAGING
SCIENCE EXPERIMENT
UAHIRISE.ORG

LPL
Lunar & Planetary Laboratory

Sand dunes are scattered across Mars and one of the larger populations exists in the Southern hemisphere, just west of the Hellas impact basin. The Hellespontus region features numerous collections of dark, dune formations that collect both within depressions such as craters, and among “extra-crater” plains areas.

