

Seasonal Flows in Valles Marineris

ESP_049955_1665

Here, recurring slope lineae (RSL) are active on east-facing slopes, extending from bouldery terrain and terminating on fans. Perhaps the fans themselves built up over time from the seasonal flows. Part of the fans with abundant RSL are dark, while the downhill portion of the fans are bright.

