

BRIGHT AND DARK SLOPE STREAKS

Slope streaks are common in the tropics of Mars. Once thought to be caused by flowing water, most scientists now believe that they are avalanches of dust. They are typically darker than their surroundings and often fan outwards downslope.

 | LPL

HIRISE

uahirise.org/ESP_059261_1950